2. READING COMPREHENSION

2.1 Read the extracts from The Secret Garden by Frances Hodgson Burnett. For questions 1–6 circle the answer (A or B) which you think is TRUE according to the text.

Frances Hodgson Burnett's classic tale follows the childhood of Mistress Mary Lennox. After Mary's parents die in India, she is sent to live with her uncle on the moors of England.

CHAPTER 1 – EXTRACT

When Mary Lennox was sent to Misselthwaite Manor to live with her uncle everybody said she was the most disagreeable-looking child ever seen. It was true, too. She had a little thin face and a little thin body, thin light hair and a sour expression. Her hair was yellow, and her face was yellow because she had been born in India and had always been ill in one way or another. Her father had held a position under the English Government and had always been busy and ill himself, and her mother had been a great beauty who cared only to go to parties and amuse herself with gay people. She had not wanted a little girl at all, and when Mary was born she handed her over to the care of a servant. Mary never remembered seeing anything but the dark faces of her servants, and as they always obeyed her and gave her her own way in everything, because her mother would be angry if she was disturbed by her crying, by the time she was six years old she was as tyrannical and selfish a little girl as ever lived.

1. Mary was always given her way when she was a little child because
 - A. the servants had to obey the little girl's orders.
 - B. the servants didn't want her to cry and make her mother angry.

CHAPTER 3 – EXTRACT

She slept a long time, and when she awakened, Mrs. Medlock had bought a lunch basket at one of the stations and they had some chicken and cold beef and bread and butter and some hot tea. The rain seemed to be streaming down more heavily than ever and everybody in the station wore wet and glistening waterproofs. The guard lighted the lamps in the carriage, and Mrs. Medlock cheered up very much over her tea and chicken and beef. She ate a great deal and afterward fell asleep herself, and Mary sat and stared at her and watched her fine bonnet slip on one side until she herself fell asleep once more in the corner of the carriage, lulled by the splashing of the rain against the windows. It was quite dark when she awakened again.

The train had stopped at a station and Mrs. Medlock was shaking her.

"You have had a sleep!" she said. "It's time to open your eyes! We're at Thwaite Station and we've got a long drive before us."

Mary stood up and tried to keep her eyes open while Mrs. Medlock collected her parcels. The little girl did not offer to help her (...)

 - A. when Mary woke up.
 - B. before Mary woke up.

3. It was pouring with rain and everyone in the station
 - A. had waterproof clothes on.
 - B. had waterproof umbrellas.

4.
 - A. Mrs. Medlock didn't like the food she was eating.
 - B. Mrs. Medlock enjoyed the food she was eating very much.

 - A. relaxed and calm.
 - B. become increasingly anxious.

TEACHERS TO START WEARING BODY CAMERAS TO RECORD PUPILS' BAD BEHAVIOUR

More than a third of teachers say they would wear a camera in the classroom, but others argue they would feel 'spied upon'

- 1 Teachers in UK schools are trialling the use of body cameras in class to record bad pupils' behaviour, it has been revealed. At least two schools in England have introduced the equipment for constant recording with the consent of local education authorities. The cameras, worn on teachers' clothing, are set to film all the time but only save encrypted footage when the record button is pressed, The Times reported.
- 2 Teachers are advised to turn on the cameras during incidents in the classroom to deal with "constant low-level disruption", but must give notice before doing so. The Information Commissioner's Office, which regulates privacy issues, said that schools were free to use cameras as long as they complied with the Data Protection Act, which states that surveillance must be "legitimate, proportionate and necessary". The technology is already used by police, parking wardens and some hospital staff as well as crossing-patrol officers.
- 3 Tom Ellis, a principle lecturer from the Institute of Criminal Justice Studies who is involved with the trial, said the cameras could be used to provide evidence for disciplinary action but also as a "self-reflection" tool for students. Footage could also be shared with parents to involve them in addressing their children's behaviour. Feedback from parents and schools was said to be positive.
- 4 A survey published on Wednesday questioning teachers on the idea found more than a third would be willing to wear a body camera in the classroom, with many wanting the technology available to help combat bad behaviour from pupils. Over one in 10 believe the time will come when bodycams will be mandatory in UK schools, the Times Education Supplement (TES) poll found. Of the 37.7 per cent who said they were in favour, some 31.6 per cent said they were motivated by teacher and student safety.
- 5 Among those who were not willing to use the technology, reasons included concerns about their own privacy and that of the children, as well as feeling spied on, or the potential for misuse by management. Around two-thirds of the teachers polled - more than 600 in total - said they would feel safer in the classroom if they knew there was a camera recording everything, while 10.9 per cent said they could foresee a time when bodycams are compulsory.

- 6 Mary Bousted, general secretary at the Association of Teachers and Lecturers (ATL), said the union did not support the use of surveillance technology to monitor children and staff. “All schools should be safe places for pupils and staff,” she said. “The evidence suggests that the best way to ensure children behave well in schools is for schools to have a good behaviour policy which is accepted by all staff and parents and is consistently applied in the school with sanctions all the pupils understand. We would not support schools being turned into prisons. CCTV can have a useful role in monitoring entrances and exits to schools to prevent strangers gaining access or vandalism, but we do not support their use in schools to monitor children and staff.”
